

NASHVILLE CONNECTIONS

Nashville Connections presented by Stewart Roxburgh is two hours of the very best music from current Music City artists and the occasional classic too. Stewart has been involved in music for more years than he cares to remember. From his days as a mobile DJ in Scotland, to hospital radio in London and more recently to internet radio. "I got hooked on Country music when I worked on a station on a London station for ten years in the 80's. This allowed me to work my way through the library and complete my country music education along with the listeners. Great artists like Janie Fricke, Ronnie Milsap, Johnny Lee and George Strait introduced me to the genre and I haven't stopped learning since."

Stewart remembers taping country music shows on a portable cassette player in his hotel rooms (before the days of internet) and collecting new music wherever he could find a record store from the Carolinas to California.

"I love to offer listeners an insight into the songs that they are hearing, the song writers, musicians involved and news of their favourite artists. Internet radio has been a great way for me to reach listeners in other countries too. I've had listeners from Japan, Norway, Belgium, Canada, Australia and country music fanatics in Italy writing to the show. Country Music is so loved around the world."
